STATINTL Dear [REDACTED]

I have been informed of your selection to participate in the Foreign Service Economic Studies program in the class which will begin on January 15, 1968. I am happy to send my wishes for success in your studies.

I am sending you separately a book which I suggest you read as a general introduction to the course, Robert Heilbroner's The Making of Economic Society. I am also sending you the text for the course in economic analysis, Samuelson's Economics and Schaum's Principles and Problems of Elementary Algebra which will help you review your algebra. You will find this a useful preparation for the statistics course.

I assume that this is about as much as you can manage to handle in the next few months. If your time or appetite are larger than my estimate, please let us know.

I enclose a description of the program of studies as it was given during the session which ended in June. Some small changes may be made in the next session in the light of experience and of suggestions made by the last class. However, the enclosure will give you a general idea of the program.

Sincerely,

Warrick E. Elrod, Jr.
Coordinator
Economic and Commercial Studies
